Kanyakumari Young Scientist is to receive "NATIONAL YOUTH AWARD-2017" from the PM

The Results of the National Youth Award, 2017, have been announced by the Government of India. Twenty-four-year-old "Science Lady" MashaNazeem, Founder and CEO of Masha Innovation Centre has been selected to receive this prestigious award. She is going to receive this prestigious award from the Indian Prime Minister Mr. NarendraModi. She hails from Eraviputhoorkadai of Kanyakumari District.

The "National Youth Award" is awarded every year by the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports, Government of India, to honour the nation's youth for their outstanding contribution in the field of national development and social work. This prestigious award comes with a cash prize of Rs 50,000/-, a medal and a citation. Masha Nazeem will receive the award at the National Youth Festival to be held inGauthamaBudda University, Greater Noida, New Delhi on 12-01-2018 from the hands of the Prime Minister.

The award gives Masha Nazeem an opportunity to be part of the youth team that will attend and represent India in foreign countries and United Nations. It is to be noted that Masha Nazeem had earlier received the "State Youth Award, 2016" from the then Chief Minister of Tamilnadu, Selvi J. Jayalalitha during the Independence Day celebration.

Masha Nazeem has been making very valuable and substantial contributions to science and innovation from a very young age and has received many National and International Awards. In order to encourage the spirit of inventiveness and creativity among students, she founded an organization in the name of Masha Innovation Centre four years ago. The centre caters to the needs of the local students on a free of charge basis and has given guidance and on-hand training in science and innovation to hundreds of students so far including seven who have received prestigious national awards. To popularize science among students, she has travelled more than 2 lakh kilometres across India and met more than 11 lakh students in various educational institutions including IITs & IIMs and given motivational speeches. Moreover, she was invited by international organizations such as Google in USA, Panasonic in Japan and Naanyang Technological University- NTU in Singapore for training or guest lecture.

Masha Nazeem says, though she is proud of the many national and international awards she has received for science and innovation, the "National Youth Award 2017" which honours her for social work makes it a very special and gratifying one. The prize money will be helpful to create more awareness in science among Indian students. She says she will be very happy to receive a prize from Mr. NarendraModiji for the second time. Also she owes a debt of gratitude to her husband Mr Abdul Basithfor his unconditional support to achieve this honour for her social work.

Dated: 13.06.2017

RECOMMENDATION LETTER

Ms. K. Masha Nazeem, aged 24, residing at 1-23B, House of Safia, Christopher Colony Road, Peruvilai, Nagercoil is a versatile personality who has brought laurels to our nation by winning 2 International, 5 National and 2 President's awards for science and innovations. During her fourteen year-long service in the field of science and innovations, she played different roles first as an inventor inventing 14 highly acclaimed inventions, next as a technology educator imparted training to several thousands of students in creative science and then as a motivational speaker conducting several talk shows among students across India. She has also had the rare privilege of meeting the late Dr Abdul Kalam six times in addition to having demonstrated her innovations before the Hon. Narendra Modiji, six Chief Ministers and six Governors of State.

In recognition of the untiring social service she has rendered, popularizing science among school students in India and producing six student National awardees through her Masha Innovation Centre, the Chief Minister's State Youth Award 2016 was conferred upon her during the Independence Day celebrations.

I strongly recommend Ms. Masha Nazeem for the National youth award 2017 for her valuable service to the Indian school students.
